Rachel Noffke grew up in Austin, Texas, and studied architectural delineation (among other subjects) at Texas Tech University. She continued to develop her artistic ability through mosaics, which included winning the Reagan Advertising Art Board competition and being a co-lead artist of a 400 square foot community mural at Barton Hills Elementary. She now works primarily in acrylics and has shown her work consistently at various galleries in Austin and the surrounding area for the last 5 years. She was recently selected for and presented a solo exhibition at the Dougherty Arts Center.
